New Year's Greetings from
Dan Keusal

*“Even in a country you know by heart
It’s hard to go the same way twice.
The life of the going changes;
the chances change and make a new way.
Any tree or stone or bird
Can be the bud of a new direction”
(from “Traveling At Home” by Wendell Berry)*

New beginnings can spring from many sources—the ancient rhythms of nature or the modern calendar page, circumstances impinging from without or intentions arising from within. But as the promise of something new seems to fade into the discouragingly familiar, our resolve can quickly wither. What if the quest is not about seeking new ground but seeing with new eyes, finding the bud of a new direction in the country we already know by heart? Discerning where such signs are calling us is a subtle art; counseling and astrology can offer valuable guidance, support, and hope. In the New Year, may you know the joy of the unexpected, the strength of rising to a challenge, and the peace that comes from living with authenticity, passion, and meaning.
